RUMOR OF HOUSE OPPOSITION.

Delegates Assert That They Will Oppose Attempts to Railroad the Ordinance-Mr. Carroll's Reported Aspirations.

·Chairman Carroll of the Ways and Means Committee of the City Council said last night that the general appropriation bill is practically ready for passage and will be presented to the City Council this after-

Mr. Carroll made this ennouncement at 9:30 p. m., after an hour's session in the Council Committee room with Delegates Murrell and Faulkner. He said that another meeting of the Council and House committees will be held this morning, when the final touches will be applied to the

The bill, which will be offered to the Council," Mr. Carroll remarked, "represents a vast amount of work. In preparing It we steered close to shore, and were suided by the estimates of Comptroller Sturgeon. We found it impossible to prescribe essential funds and keep absolutely within the designated limits, but the total of the bill will not be very much in exess of the Comptroller's estimate of revenue, which is $5,594,629.88.

This was an important undertaking, involving much detail. We knew how much money we would have to pay out in the course of the year, and we knew that the expenditures must not be more than the

"Accordingly we proceeded to cut from the allotments of each department. Every appropriation has been decreased some. In doing this we attempted to make the cuts as proportionate as possible, making each department endure a share of the def-icit. That in brief, is all I can say before the bill is submitted."

Mr. Carroll further said that he has in view a proposition to effect an improvement in the city's financial condition. He asserts that the city must not again be short of funds for actual expenses, and he will soon submit a plan whereby a deficit may be prevented in the future.

Asked if he would be a candidate for Comptroller, he said that he has not now any such aspiration, although he would not explicitly deny the City Hall rumor.

At the City Hall it was said yesterday that Mr. Carroll commands five votes in the Council, and he expects to have the bill passed easily. It was also said that an attempt will be made to "railroad" it through the House. Some delegates have openly averred that they will oppose any such endeavor.

MURDER AT WACO.

Two Prominent Men Found Dead With Their Throats Cut.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Waco, Tex., July 80.-The city was shocked this morning at 3 o'clock by the discovery of a double murder at No. 818 North Eleventh street. Myron C. Kingsbury and his brother-in-law, Duncan Mo-Lennan, were murdered in bed, their throats being cut from ear to ear.

Mrs. Kingsbury, wife of the dead man, who occupied a separate room, heard a commotion in her husband's room and ran to see what it was. The room was dark, and she returned for a light. When she en-tered the second time with light in hand a horrible sight met her gaze. Her husband lay on the bed dead, and across his body lay her brother, dying.

She ran from the house screaming, and eighbors responded promptly to her cries f distress. Officers were summoned, and an investigation began, but the tragedy is hrouded in mystery. Kingsbury was accidentally shot in the oot some months ago and had just collected $8,000 accident insurance, and it is said a kept the money in the house. It is believed that some person knowing of this entered the room for the purpose of rob-bery, and being discovered killed the two men to avoid identification.

Another theory is the two men became involved in a fight and that McLennan, after killing Kingsbury, cut his own throat. Duncan McLennan is a grandson of Neil McLennan, one of the first settlers in this part of Texas and for whom this (McLennan).

DISCUSS STRIKE TROUBLE.

To Recommend a Felony Act Covering the Outrageous Attacks on Defenseless Women-Committees Named.

Sixty-one Prosecuting Attorneys of the State of Missouri met yesterday morning in the office of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Sam D. Hodgdon at the Four Courts and transacted considerable important business relative to bills which will be introduced at the coming meeting of the General Assembly. It was decided that the next meeting of the State's attorneys should be held concurrently with the regular meeting of the Circuit Judges, at which time final action will be taken upon a number of the propositions presented at the meeting yesterday. William D. Steele, Prosecuting Attorney of Pettis County, presided at the meeting. One of the most important subjects dis cussed was a provision for the abolition of the office of Prosecuting Attorney in counties and for the establishing of the office of Circuit Attorney in lieu thereof. It was the prevailing sentiment of the meet ing that there should be some constitu tional provision leading to the abolishment of the Grand Jury system. The latter sys-tem now in vogue is considered unneces-sary, expensive and altogether ex parte. Argument on the strike situation in St. Louis resulted in the passage of a resolu tion recommending that it be made a felo-ny in the State of Missouri to strip a woman on the streets.

Other resolutions were passed which pro-vide for the following amendments: Change of law of burglary, first degree; statute making it burgiary, second degree, to break into a vacant building to cut lead pipe; provision that conviction of lesser degree may be had on indictment for burglary, first degree; bill making a bond in criminal cases Hen on specified property of the bonds-degree; bill making a bond in criminal cases a lien on specified property of the bondsman.

At the joint meeting of the Prosecuting Attorneys and Circuit Judges several important papers on subjects concerning prospective legislation will be read.

Doram, Memphis, First District; Benjamin Franklin, Macon, Second District; Walliam R. Little. Rockport, Fourth District; Sydney Beery, Platt City, Fifth District; James R. Frank Price Located, and His Chum Cleared of Suspicion of Having Killed Him.

MISSING SEVENTY-ONE DAYS.

Ed Ryan, Who Was the Last Person Seen With Him and Who Had His Clothes, Released From Custody.

Frank Price of Madison, who had been a school teacher and an authorees in her day, had been inseparable companions. The son studied hard to be a writer, and his mining gradually became urbalanced. When his mother became ill, several months ago, he was constantly at her bedside, and would not even allow his brother and his family, who lived in the same house, to assist in nursing the sick woman.

He left a note on the library table requesting that all his literary work be destroyed. He had imagined himself a great author and had squandered nearly all his fortune publishing his novels.

Frank Price of Madison, who had been missing seventy-one days, and, in the meantline, was mourned by his parents as dead, was found, working for a farmer, in the American Bottom lowlands, yesterday, by Marshal McCambridge of Madison.

While Price was busy in the harvest field, Ed Ryan, his chum, was imprisoned at Madison, charged with murdering him.

Such a chain of circumstantial evidence had been woven around the prisoner that he had employed an attorney to defend him and was expecting to make a fight for his and was expecting to make a fight for his

Ryan was visited at the jail by his 16-Full Bloods Decide to Return to year-old daughter, Estelle, early yesterday In the course of a tearful interview, he swore to his child that he was innocent. His attorney was on the point of waiving a preliminary hearing, owing to the serious nature of the evidence, when Marshal McCambridge arrived from the Bottoms with news that the supposed murdered man was alive. Since early in June, when Price, who is only 19 years old, was first missed by his parents, they had searched for him constantly. His description was telegraphed over Madison County and inquiries were made at Horseshoe Lake, where he had last been seen with Ryan, but, as the latter could not be found, foul play was suspected. could not be found, foul play was suspected.

A few days ago, Mr. Price, Frank's father, received a letter, postmarked Madison, which stated that his son's body had been thrown in the lake.

Within a fortnight Ryan appeared in Madison. Price, Sr., was the first to learn of his presence. He located the newcomer at the Carter boarding-house and identified a coat Ryan wore as having been

Price, Sr., begged Ryan to accompany him to a neighboring saloon on a pretext of getting a drink. Ryan consented, and when they entered State street, Price hailed Officer O'Neill, and, dramatically waving his hand at Ryan, told the officer to lock him up for having killed his son.

Ryan denied knowing anything about young Price. He had, he said, left him at Horseshoe Lake in May, and the detective work of Marshal McCambridge later verified his statement. The suspected man was held for investigation, however, and the police set out to clear up the case if Price was alive. Marshal McCamridge made the first move by Journeying overland to Horseshoe Lake.

No one there appeared to know anything about Price, McCambridge pushed on with a determination to search the whole bottoms if necessary, and later in the day he stopped at a farmhouse. The day was sultry, and, after admiring his host's cool grounds, the officer asked the farmer if he had heard aught of a stroller named Price and proceeded to describe the youth.

"He's right here on this farm, stranger, and has been with me for several weeks, speke up the farmer, whose name was Johnson. Price was then hurriedly sent for, and when told of his chum's predicament at Madison, Price's astonishment was surpassing. He explained his peculiar conduct by saying that he had decided to make his own way in the world, and had, therefore, failed to communicate with his parents. Ryan, he said, came by his clothes by unding for them.

Ryan was immediately released.
